The ESWC e.V. is a not-for-profit foundation of German law that organizes the European Shareware Conference each year (www.euroconference.org) and a genuine European body and forum of representation. Professionally crafted and designed, a great amount of ingenuity is embedded in the software which Shareware authors produce - putting them side by side with Microsoft products - sometimes leading the way.

The board of the ESWC e.V. has decided to take part at the TECHED in Amsterdam from June 29 to July 2nd with a Pavillon dedicated to Shareware.

This pavillon will exhibit a few examples of the great variety that the Shareware world of companies and individual programmers has to offer. Eight individual companies from all over Europe will demonstrate their skills and knowledge. Please visit us to talk to: Robert Oxford of Ammara.com, Dirk Paessler of Paessler.com, Petri Litmanen of LabF.com, Jan Gouvaert of JGSoft.com, Henk Devos of WhirlingDervishes.com, Marck Pearlstone of Brainstormsw.com and Dejan Maksimovic of Alfasp.com and Ruediger Kuegler from wibu.com
